

Custom Electronics

We are a unique team of experienced marketing professionals committed to building a better world through creative promotional marketing; Lofty, we know, but we are a “Reach For The Stars” crew. We are tribe builders, design geeks, and advertising aficionados. We are proponents of old school, hands-on, actual warm person customer service, and choose to apply it in unison with the latest technological tools available. We set high expectations, then commit ourselves to exceeding them. We know that each organization we work with is unique. There is no one-size-fits-all approach. We tailor each project to make sure your specific objectives are met.

Our vendors think we’re the most creative distributors, because we are! We ask the hard questions and we’re educated buyers. We are open, easy to work with and we think with an out-of-the-box mentality. We know there is no one size fits all approach for unique promotional products. We serve clients around the world and tailor every project for each client to make sure their specific objectives are met.

Promotional products are the one advertising medium that folks actually say "thank you" for. We understand what that means. It means doing things just a little different to stand out. It means looking at the end goal and sending the ball high over it. We provide services that are more than just selling a pen; more than putting an embroidery left chest on a boring polo shirt. We strive to make a difference.
